A large, stylized map of the Netherlands is formed by a dense collection of green icons. These icons represent a wide variety of elements: buildings, trees, people, animals (like a cow and a horse), vehicles (cars, a train, a bicycle), infrastructure (roads, bridges, a windmill), and symbols of nature (waves, a leaf). The icons are arranged to follow the geographical outline of the country, with a higher density in the northern and western parts. The overall effect is a mosaic that captures the essence of Dutch culture and landscape.
